Common Good in Smile Town

Read the following story and answer the questions:

Once upon a time in the Smile Town community, there were lots of families, friends, and friendly animals living together. In Smile Town, everyone worked together to make sure life was good for everyone. They believed in something called the "common good."

The common good means doing things that help everyone, not just one person. Imagine you and your friends are playing a game, and you decide to include everyone, so everyone has fun. That's like the common good!

In Smile Town, the families took care of the community garden. They planted colorful flowers and yummy vegetables for everyone to enjoy. The kids helped clean up the playground so everyone could play in a safe and happy place. Even the animals chipped in by sharing their extra nuts and berries.

One day, they had a big meeting in Smile Town to decide on a new rule. They talked about whether to have a special day to clean up the whole town. Some friends thought it was a great idea because it would make Smile Town even happier! Others thought it might be hard work, but they agreed that it was for the common good – to make the town clean and beautiful for everyone.

And so, they had the special cleaning day. Families, friends, and even the animals worked together. They picked up trash, swept the streets, and planted more flowers. When the day was over, Smile Town looked even more wonderful than before. In Smile Town, they knew that by working together for the common good, everyone could enjoy a happy and beautiful community.

1. What does 'Common Good' mean in Smile Town?
2. What did the families in Smile Town do for Common Good?
3. Why is it important for people to believe in Common Good?